At Huggy Tuggy Premium Freeze-Dried Dog Treats, our mission is to provide high-quality and premium health and well-being products to every animal companion. Our commitment to quality and safety is reflected in every aspect of our business, from sourcing and processing to packaging and distribution.

We only use pure and natural raw materials in our products and comply strictly with food safety standards. Our salmon and pollack fish are sourced from the northern Pacific coastline, while our chicken breast is sourced from the northern province of South Korea. These ingredients are immediately flash-frozen upon catch and transported to a state-of-the-art freeze-drying facility in South Korea for processing and packaging. The facility complies with FDA guidelines and is subject to strict quality control measures, ensuring the safety and quality of our human-grade treats.

Once processed, the treats are packaged and shipped back to our headquarters in Seattle, Washington. Here, our team conducts a final inspection before delivering the product to our customers. With a focus on providing the best possible products for our animal companions, we are confident that our treats will contribute to their overall health and well-being
